Italian Seaplane Going to the Aid of Rebels Stopped

French Intercept It En Route to Spanish War, Arresting 11 Men

ARE GUN-RUNNERS

Fleet of Six Tri-Motors Started, But Three Are Reported Lost

By the Associated Press
Eleven Italians were arrested and a huge Italian seaplane was seized Friday in French Morocco as French military forces sought to suppress international repercussions from Spain's 14-day revolt.

The tri-motored plane, forced down on the coast, carried guns.

Another plane, which crashed and burned, was loaded with machine-guns, bombs, hand-grenades and boxes of Italian ammunition.

A third plane, part of a reported fleet of six en route to Spanish rebel headquarters in Morocco, was missing in a fierce Mediterranean storm.

American Sees Bombing

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The master of the American export liner Exochorda, reported by wireless Friday that he witnessed the aerial bombardment of Palma, in the Balearic Islands, shortly after he removed 32 foreigners from that Spanish possession.

King's Assailant Will Stand Trial

McMahon Weeps as He Declares He Only Threw Revolver at King

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—George Andrew McMahon was committed for criminal trial Friday on three charges after he testified at a Bow street police court hearing that he "slithered" a revolver at King Edward on Constitution Hill two weeks ago.

Weeping in the witness box, the prisoner testified he planned to shoot himself, but instead, decided to toss his revolver in the roadway in a protest against "wrongful imprisonment."

Neill C. Marsh to Speak Here Friday

Congress Candidate to Appear on City Hall Steps at 8 o'Clock

Neill C. Marsh, El Dorado attorney and candidate for congress from the Seventh Arkansas district, will deliver a campaign address at 8 p. m. Friday from the steps of Hope city hall.

His speech here will be the third in the county Friday, having appeared at Washington at 10 a. m. and at Patmos at 3 p. m.

Mr. Marsh is opposed in the race by Wade Kitchens of Magnolia, who conducted a speaking campaign over the county last week, appearing at seven places.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Some girls make love like they fly kites—with a string to it.

We know that our collie is at least sixteen years old. There's some doubt about which summer it was when he was shipped to us from the kennels at Watseka, Ohio. It was either 1921 or 1922. He was bred by the late Whiting Avery, who specialized on white collies, but our collie is golden brown. Whiting sold him to us for $50, but said he would have charged a stranger $150.

I remember distinctly the day when the expressman delivered him to my office, trembling in a crate. I took him directly to the country. From that day to this he has slept wherever we have slept.

X X X
His kennel name is Lustre, so we call him Lusty, for short. He is a large collie, with a long nose and a magnificent chest and tail. His coat today is as thick and handsome as ever, but his joints are a bit stiff except when a strange dog dares to trespass on our property.

Then his head and tail rise, and he barks his warning. If the intruder is not intimidated, Lusty goes into action.

For many years he was a grand companion on a walk, but now he can't manage more than a block without resting. When he is left behind he does not sulk but pretends some other interest and slowly picks his way home.

In traffic he is as careful as an old man. Before crossing, he looks over the road in both directions, sizes up the speed of the cars that may be approaching, and ambles across. At one particularly confusing spot where several roads converge, he must once have been bewildered, because in recent years he will not leave the sidewalk at the place even though he is on leash.

Only for a short period in his long life has he chased automobiles or bitten anyone. At that time we were living on a street where he tried to compete in silliness with a rival dog. A delivery boy probably tried to kick him from the side of a truck and got his leg nipped. That was his first and last offense. When we left the street, he quit his bad habits.

X X X

Lusty is so sensitive and well behaved that he has never been reprimanded except by voice. A single word will send him from a room. When company is around he sits on his haunches, with his front stretched out in front, and his front end erect—a magnificent sight of which he seems aware.

We have owned half a dozen other dogs at different times while Lusty has been with us. He has tolerated and protected them, as well as our occasional cats. But whereas they were kitchen dogs, with little on their minds except food, Lusty rarely goes near the kitchen unless the cook is entertaining or his meal time is approaching.

Everyone who knows him or has seen him is his friend. He's a great dog and I wish he had as many years ahead of him as I hope I have.

Italy, Germany to Recognize Locarno

Mussolini Apparently Adopts Conciliatory Policy Toward Europe

ROME, Italy.—(AP)—Italy Friday accepted in principle an invitation to the five-power conference of Locarno powers.

Her tacit acceptance, apparently signaling her intention to return to European collaboration, followed by less than two weeks the preliminary Locarno conference in London between Great Britain, France and Belgium.

Germany to Attend
BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Germany Friday accepted an invitation to the five-power conference for a new Locarno treaty.

"Staggered" Sprinkling Saves Water and Lawns

MIDDLETOWN, O.—(AP)—Water Works Superintendent Earl Gebhart, who has a lawn of his own, didn't order home owners not to sprinkle their lawns during the heat wave.

Instead he asked them to stagger their sprinkling—sprinkle for a half hour, stop for a half hour, then sprinkle again.

"The system saved enough water, he said, and saved lawns too.

Mud-Slinging by Ward, Bearden Is Dropped Thursday

Sheriff's Race Becomes Straight-Forward Debate at Columbus
FEELING SUBSIDES

Crowd of 200 Hear County Candidates Speak at Columbus School

By KELLY BRYANT
A complete reversal in the tone of the sheriff's race occurred Thursday at Columbus.

Instead of the charges, counter-charges and insinuations which flew back and forth at the Spring Hill and Hope speaking the Columbus meeting was characterized by two clean speeches free from any kind of mud-slinging.

Bearden First

Jim Bearden, the first speaker, began on his record for the past 20 months. He said:

"I have used women as jurors in the municipal court at Hope and have accomplished good results, and I intend to use them more in the future."

Bearden then discussed crime in the county, giving the number of convictions, and stated:

"I have not compromised with crime. I promised you two years ago that if you elected me I would clean up this county. My promise has been filled. I have gone after every law-breaker, and it made no difference whether it was my friend or my enemy. I say to you this—and listen, my friends—the people that are following me around on this speaking tour and are casting snuff and spreading false statements are not honorable citizens of Hempstead county. These people have no more regard for law than John Dillinger."

I have not been the aggressor in any speech where I have talked first on the program."

In closing, Bearden complimented his office force at Washington, and took up the merits of his field force.

Frank Ward Followed Bearden

Ward opened with this statement:

"I am capable of handling the sheriff's job, both in the office and in the field. Service has always been my motto since I have been in public office. On several occasions I have given my personal check to people in the county for their scrip and have held this until money was in the treasury to repay me."

Ward also said, "I have always fought against liquor. I have a clean record in both my 18 years of school teaching and my four years of public office. I stand on my own merits."

Ward Closes

In closing, Ward said: "We must jettison our county government on the highest plane possible. We must build and not destroy. All of the officials of Hempstead county should stay above reproach. If they don't they are not entitled to your vote."

"Character and morals are needed to go through life, and I appeal to you fathers and mothers to do all possible to put the best influence before your children, especially the officers you elect."

Bearden then had a rebuttal. He said, "I compliment Mr. Ward on his speech. I have no answer to make—only be good Democrats and give me my second term."

A crowd of about 200 was present to hear the candidates at Columbus. The meeting was held inside the schoolhouse. The candidates for the offices of representative and county judge spoke in the morning. All of the candidates were invited to dinner at various homes in Columbus. The candidates for sheriff, circuit clerk, and county treasurer spoke in the afternoon.

Roosevelt Takes U. S. Greetings to Neighbor Canada

Canada Prepares Formal Reception for the American President
DESERTED "QUODDY"

Roosevelt Inspects Abandoned Tidal Power Project in Maine

QUEBEC, Canada.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, responding to a tremendous ovation in this historic French-Canadian city, asserted Friday, "Frank dealing, co-operation and the spirit of give and take between nations is more important than ever before" in solving world problems.

F. D. Enters Canada

EASTPORT, Me.—(AP)—President Roosevelt turned toward Quebec late Thursday for a conference on American problems after a personal appearance on the eastern shore of Maine.

Announcing a change in plans in mid-afternoon, the president, accompanied by his mother and Col. Philip B. Fleming, in charge of the abandoned Passamaquoddy tidal power project, left his Campobello Island summer home by motor and ferried over to Lubec, Me.

Visits Model Village

Taking a circuitous route around bays and inlets, he motored to the model village housing the depleted corps of Quoddy workers and then drove to nearby Eastport, where the yacht Potomac waited to take him on a 16-mile run up Passamaquoddy bay to St. Andrews, N. B. There a special train was ready for the trip for Quebec where he will arrive Friday.

Canada has arranged to accord the president full honors due a visiting foreign head.

James Roosevelt, eldest son, and his wife, military and naval aides and two secretaries, were to accompany him to Quebec. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left Campobello Thursday by motor for Hyde Park.

To Talk Power Development

One of the subjects the president will take up in his talks with the governor general and Premier MacKenzie King will be the possibility of co-operative development by the two countries of hydroelectric power, both at Quoddy and on the St. Lawrence river. Two years ago the American senate defeated the St. Lawrence waterway treaty looking to mutual development of the international rapids sections of the river for power purposes.

Canada Abandoned Plans at Quoddy Seven Years Ago

Only 1,200 workers of the original 5,600 are now at the model village near here, built at a cost of around $1,500,000. A total of $5,500,000 had gone into dam and other works when congress rejected an amendment to the deficiency bill carrying $800,000 for another year's work.

If congress again refuses to grant authority for the projects construction, the president said Wednesday, the 5,000 originally at work would have to be placed on other relief jobs. He said he believed in the feasibility of Quoddy and believed Maine people did too.

Japan Is Awarded the 1940 Olympiad

International Committee Gives Games to Tokyo 4 Years From Now

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—The international Olympic committee Friday awarded the 1940 summer games to Tokyo, Japan.

3-Store Block Is Bought by Carrel

Purchases Walnut Street Sites of Shipley's, Robins', and Mills'

Purchase of three buildings on South Walnut street by Tom Carrel, Hope estate dealer, was announced Friday. The buildings are occupied by Shipley Studio, Robins' beer parlor and Mills' radio shop.

The purchase was made from First National Bank of Hope. It was a cash deal, Mr. Carrel said. The amount was not disclosed.

Mr. Carrel announced that the buildings would be remodeled and painted, work to start immediately.

Mr. and Mrs. Carrel have been residents of Hope the past two years. "We like it here and plan to make Hope our permanent home," they said. They came here from Springdale, Ark.

Canada Greets First Official Visit of the U. S. President

The scene of history-making events almost since America's discovery, Quebec thrilled to the unprecedented meeting of President Roosevelt and Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada. Marking the first official visit an American president has paid to Canada, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in collaboration with United States Minister Norman Armour, mustered all the pomp accorded royalty for the occasion. The heads of the two governments were to be introduced on Dufferin Terrace, in the shadow of Citadel Hill's ramparts, whose capture made Canada English domain instead of French.

BELOW: The Quebec skyline, on the cliff high above the St. Lawrence, with the modern Chateau Frontenac towering high above its old-world neighbors.

Absentee Ballots Ready on Saturday

Voters Should Obtain Them From County Clerk Ray E. McDowell

Hempstead county citizens who expect to cast absentee ballots in the Democratic primary election August 11 may obtain ballots from Ray E. McDowell, county clerk, any time after Saturday noon, August 1.

Persons requesting such ballots may obtain them by letter or by personal appearance at the courthouse in Washington.

This announcement was made Friday by W. S. Atkins, chairman of the Hempstead County Democratic Central Committee.

Graveyard Working

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(Special)—Governor Landon's stock is said to have gone up in Kansas the other night when a driving rain turned dust into mud and checked the spread of the grasshoppers, and now some upstart of a Democrat is going to want to know what the governor's going to do with so much mud, and what state started this grasshopper business anyway. Business is so rotten in some stores you almost have to stand in line to be waited on, and it's getting to be such a bother to get on relief some of us may be forced to go to work.

Voters Face 21 Questions

SACRAMENTO.—(AP)—California voters will face twenty-one measures on the November general election ballot and may have to deal with twenty-six more. Already fourteen constitutional amendments two referendum measures and five initiative proposals have been qualified for the ballot.

Fort Walton, on West Coast, Hit to Reach Alabama

75-Miles-an-Hour Wind Accompanied by Torrential Downpour

WIRES EAST DOWN

Pennsacola Lines Cut Off as Hurricane Crosses Shore From Gulf

PENSACOLA, Fla.—(AP)—Hurricane winds and high tides struck Friday at the resort village of Fort Walton, Fla., menacing shipping and damaging some shore-line property.

The surf surged seven to eight feet higher than normal, refugees said. The Weather Bureau reported the storm was heading for Alabama.

Communication facilities east of Pensacola failed early in the day with the passage of the tropical hurricane across the coast line near New Valpariso, about 45 miles from here on the Gulf shore.

Last reports from Valpariso told of wind velocities between 65 and 75 miles an hour, torrential rain, unusually high tides, and a rapidly falling barometer.

There were no reports of casualties here although the gale ripped at roofs, blew down signs, felled trees and made traffic dangerous.

Farm Prices Hit Highest in 6 Years

North American Drought Coupled With Other World Crop Losses

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Soaring grain prices in all important world markets Friday brought major farm commodities' values to the highest general level in six years.

Unfavorable crop conditions in many sections of the world, with the toll of grain losses from drought and heat in North America mounting daily, was the incentive for a broad buying movement.

Few Hairs "Clue" in Clevenger Case

Asheville (N. C.) Police Have Turned Evidence Over to "G" Men

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—Police Chief W. J. Everett announced Friday that "the secret clue in the Helen Clevenger case" sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington was several hairs from a man's head found on a towel in the girl's hotel bathroom.

County Mergers a Needed Economy

95 County Governments "Too Many" Says Tennessee Tax Speaker

JACKSON, Tenn.—(AP)—Rehabilitation of land and consolidation of county governments were discussed here Thursday at the second session of the West Tennessee Farmers and Homemakers Institute.

Dr. H. A. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, told approximately 700 institute members that land rehabilitation was the "greatest peace movement possible today."

Dr. Morgan said the movement was being furthered by the social experiment being conducted in the Tennessee valley through production of by-products such as nitrogen, potash and phosphorus.

E. W. Palmer, president of the Kingsport Press and vice president of the Tennessee Taxpayers association, said the need for 95 separate counties to perform the functions of government in Tennessee had long since passed, advocating consolidation of the counties into small central groups for reduction of expenses and more efficient administration.

Tennesseeans have no right, he said, to protest against tax burdens until county governments in the state have been reduced to at least a third of the present number.

Deer Is Cotton Enemy

CHERAW, S. C.—(AP)—Deer has been mentioned with the boll weevil here as a "public enemy" of the cotton farmer. One planter blames deer for eating 2 acres of his staple.

Marie Antoinette was imprisoned for more than a year before her execution.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

What we call fear is a reaction depending on experience and discrimination. It is one of the most important forces in our lives. If it were not for fear, we would expose ourselves to dangers which would be fatal to the human race.

Children must learn what to fear, and what not to fear. A cowardly child is one who has learned to fear when it should not fear.

Many parents teach their children to fear by threatening them with unknown dangers. The greatest fear of all is the fear of the unknown.

If a child is given an adequate explanation of the reason for darkness, if it is told about animals and aided to become used to them, if it sees its own parents act with equanimity when subjected to small cuts, bruises, and pains, the child probably will learn to face these things courageously.

When the child is developed, leads to a ghost of anxieties. Moreover, the child soon learns to use its cowardice, its anxieties, and its fears as weapons to get what it wants. For example, by shrieks of terror the child can bring its mother to its bedside, and by continuing the shrieks it can keep her there.

There is no reason why a child should lie awake in fear of darkness, lightning, or the like, threats of which have stimulated his nervous system.

In helping a child to overcome fear, a parent first should determine definitely the nature of the object that is feared. Parents are likely to threaten a child who develops wrong speech habits with "mutilation" of the body.

This fear of mutilation may mark not only the entire youth of the child, but may affect its life as a whole. The modern parent will learn to be frank with children and not to threaten them with punishments or dangers which are wholly fantastic.

One child psychologist talked with parents who complained that their children were constantly cross and irritable, had nightmares, made up fantastic stories, were shy, diffident, sensitive, or exceedingly rude. This does not mean that all the children had all these symptoms. Some had only one bad habit; the others had several.

When the children were studied carefully, definite bases were found for each of these mental habits. The conditions were relieved by getting these children to play with others, sometimes by sending them away to visit relatives at a distance, or by sending them to a distant school.

In other words, in the majority of cases, most of the trouble was due to a wrong relationship between parent and child.

Remember that it is important to correct bad mental habits as soon as possible. Mental habits that develop before the child is 6 years old are the ones which are carried throughout life.

In this period, habits of speech and, frequently, mechanical skills are established. In this period, too, the child may develop control of his surroundings by tantrums or fits, or it may learn to adjust itself to living with other people in comparative comfort and calm.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

We hear almost nothing of the old time danger, "cholera infantum" any more. Actually I don't believe many young mothers know what it means.

Well, it was blood cousin to cholera, as far as symptoms went, and took off babies about as quickly. Thus its name. It was almost synonymous with summer heat. Another bugaboo of hot weather was "baby's second summer."

That meant that the stomach, teeth and molar menaced the baby's life.

This article is written in appreciation of those scientists who bent their efforts toward saving the baby, and who taught us about sterilization and milk care. And those who toiled to prove that vitamins and fortified systems had much to do with health in general and emergency-weather in particular. I want to impress on every young mother who reads this, that she can thank her stars she lives today instead of twenty or even ten years ago.

Responsibility Still Mother's
I wonder if it is necessary to go over the items that make for baby's safety today. We can't buy all the protection against bowel and stomach trouble in bottles. The responsibility of keeping these tots well is as much ours as ever it was, the only difference being that now we can be assured that our baby will bring results. Guessing has had its day.

The bottles and nipples must be boiled before being filled again. If the baby is taking his milk or prepared food from a cup, as is being urged for the year-old, then in extreme weather it is a good idea to boil his dishes too.

The milk must be kept cold. From the time it enters the house to the time it is warmed for drinking. And after the formula is prepared for the day, it must be tightly covered and not allowed to absorb any other possibilities from the ice box. Civic inspection makes all milk fairly reliable in most communities, but even at that I would make sure of the source of supply.

I should never guess at formulas. This is a doctor's business and, to my mind, almost the most important work he has to do. This does not mean that one has to call him or see him every week or even month, if the baby is thriving or gaining, but it does mean that one has to call him or see him every week or even month, if the baby is thriving or gaining; but it does mean to have some authority behind one if only as a matter of relief for the mother.

Head "Neglected Age"
All roads lead to Rome at this time of year and Rome is the babies. Get them through the heat alive and well.

Don't stop at the two-year-old. The time between two and six is named by many medical men as the "neglected age." These children need care. Their food, too, must be selected with care and regular nourishing meals provided.

Regular routine should be their lot, and plenty of rest and sleep. Bowel trouble doesn't need much coaxing in hot weather. Mixtures of foods, permissible in winter, won't be easily tolerated by those tender stomachs. Don't keep food over. Keep the ice-box clean. Cover all food. Watch water. Cool it but don't ice it for young stomachs. Keep children out of the sun.

Our greatest tribute to science is to carry on and do our part. It is nothing to the struggle it used to be. Surely we can do our bit now.

A number of Hollywood authors have trailers which they drive into the mountains in search of peace and inspiration. And W. C. Fields has one for skittering around the hot springs resorts.

He does most of his writing in it; has a machine to take his dialog dictation, a typewriter, a bar, and assets enough to accommodate a good-sized story conference.

With Telephone Hook-up
Ida Lupino is one of the confirmed movie vagabonds. She, her sister, and her mother take trips when Ida is working, but they're never long out of touch with the studio, because the trailer has a telephone which can be connected to any line.

Studio engineers will tell you that trailers were invented right here in Hollywood. Evolved, rather, because for a good many years dressing-rooms have been built on wheels for towing around the lots. It was a short step to streamlining and putting them on motor car wheels.

Mobile laboratories also are an old story in the movie business. And some are fitted up as projection rooms, so that executives can see the rushes on location trips.

For Rail and Road
Kent Taylor and Director Henry King also lived in private trailers on the long "Ramona" location. Cecilia Parker rented a fancy one for a similar expedition; it had both automobile and railroad wheels, but she couldn't find any tracks where the driving was safe.

Buster Kenton traveled about the country in a trailer five years ago, but it attracted so much attention then that he had to give it up. Tutty Marshall, 72-year-old character actor, has been living in a trailer for years. While working, he parks his house next to the studio lot.

One picture was delayed two weeks because Marshall thought he had completed his assignment and left without a forwarding address. They had to have him for some retakes, though, and production was held up until they found the veteran camping in Arizona.

Under Own Power
Jane Darwell, Alan Dinehart, Pat O'Brien, Warner Baxter, and even the luxury-loving Alice Faye are trailer enthusiasts. Wallace Berry recently traveled across the country in his. It's more like a double-jointed bus, really; has a special power unit instead of being coupled to an ordinary automobile.

The local automobile club says there are about 800 trailers running around Hollywood, and most of them belong to people connected with the movies. Picture-projection machines and snug little bars manned by Japanese house-boys are the only important innovations so far, but any day now you may expect to hear about the Maharajahs of Flicker going touring in trailers.

First studio to make a trailer picture is Twentieth Century-Fox. In production now, it's called "See America First," and is all about a family touring the western national parks.

Novel Feature of This Year's Campaign

RESORT HOTEL

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANN HAMILTON, pretty young secretary in a large business office, goes to a travel agency to make plans for her two-week vacation.

BILL WARE, travel bureau employee, who has arranged other vacation trips for her, tries to persuade her to go to Lake Racine. Ann talks she prefers the seashore.

For the first time Ann notices that Bill is a good-looking young man. Because she is rushed for time he asks if he can come to her home that evening to finish planning the trip. Ann agrees.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

WILLIAM WARE, the travel agent, called at the little apartment Ann shared with another girl at 8 that evening. The girls had scarcely put the dinner dishes away when he rang. They still had their aprons on.

"Oh!" Ann breathed. "I'd almost forgotten. Alice, you'll have to run on alone to see the movie. That young man from the travel bureau is going to try to change my mind about going to the seashore. He thinks I ought to go to Lake Racine."

Alice eyed her knowingly. "Are you sure this hasn't all the marks of a budding romance?"

"Of course not!" Ann said. "It merely saves me time. He's only the clerk there. No romance about him. I'm going to the seashore to catch my knight in shining armor."

Alice let William Ware in. Ann could tell by her glance that she approved of him. But young Mr. Ware was very business-like with his satchel. He went to the desk-table and started taking out folders and leaflets, arranging them in neat rows. His manner was brisk.

He didn't see Alice go out of the room, so zealous he had become in his efforts to sell Ann a vacation at Lake Racine. His talk abounded with enthusiasm and salesmanship.

But when he turned he saw Ann smiling at him. He looked around and saw that the other girl had gone. Then, suddenly, his whole manner changed. The salesman's mask vanished, and he was laughing with her.

"After the day's work is over it's hard to get out of harness," he said.

Then he talked less glibly, less like a salesman.

His manner became almost awkward but it was an attractive awkwardness because of his clean-cut good looks. His blue eyes held a curious light in them.

"Mr. Ware, must I really go to Lake Racine?" Ann said, eyeing him askance. "I had planned to go to the seashore, but if you insist—" long in the office nobody calls me anything but 'Mr. Ware.' I'm human, too. I like to be with pretty girls."

Bill helped her into her coat—his efforts to please her a little jerky.

"Oh!" Ann said archly. Somehow she hadn't been considering him in a romantic light. Out of sheer curiosity she let her eyes meet his again. She found it hard to escape his impetuous regard.

Perhaps he was lonely. Ann had known loneliness in a city teeming with millions. It was truly hard to meet the right people—the people who wouldn't use you, or consider themselves used by your intrusion into their lives. A city, she knew, can be the loneliest place in the world.

"I haven't had much time for dates," he went on, still flushing a little. "Too busy at my job. I've always had to be on my toes, better than the guys who were working under me. Besides, I had a kid brother in high school. Supported him for six years." His eyes held a glow of pride. "Now he's through school and has gone to work. I have more time for frivolous things."

"You think girls are—frivolous things?" Ann said, smiling at him. For some reason she wanted to tease him. "By the way, are you trying to sell me a trip to Lake Racine or are you trying to sell me—yourself?"

He flushed deeply, and began to stammer. "I'm sorry. You know, I'm not at the office any longer—" vacation does come the first two weeks in August, doesn't it? That's when I take mine there."

"When I went back to the office this afternoon," she said, "I found that my vacation comes in July. I'm sorry."

He seemed almost intolerably hurt. All his efforts seemed suddenly to have no meaning. He fingered the folders abstractedly. "Oh—I'm sorry, too. I thought maybe you and I—"

She couldn't bear to witness his disappointment. He looked crestfallen, unhappy, like a small, frustrated boy.

He was a nice boy, once he cast off the aura of the business office. But he was only the boy who worked behind the desk in a travel agency. She saw him almost every day in the year, as she walked up the street at lunch hour. She would never have let him enter her romantic dreams.

Ann had in mind a vacation romance—not the swift, heady kind, but the real thing. A romantic love, something that would last. Her eager mind conjured up scenes on moonlit mountain lakes. The men one met on vacation had a very special aura about them, like knights in shining armor.

But now she said, "I'm sorry—Bill!"

His eyes lighted up. He and Ann seemed no longer to be miles apart. He began to talk about himself again.

"All these years I've planned other people's vacations. I've enjoyed their trips—in my imagination. I suppose I have a good imagination now. My idea of a swell vacation always included a girl—"

Ann put out her hand with a low boyish swing, and said, "There are lots of girls! You draw up the papers and I'll drop by your office tomorrow noon to pay the full amount. You know what I can afford—a little less than last year."

Bill stood up, his eyes wide, because he was afraid she was putting him out of her life forever. He fairly blurted out, "Say, I don't want to take up your time but if you're going to a movie, why won't you go with me?"

She looked at him closely, taking his measure. He was too naive and sincere to embarrass her. His abrupt manner and awkwardness rather pleased her.

"All right," she said, shrugging her shoulders. "Sold again! Greta Garbo is right around the corner." "I like Greta, too," he said eagerly. "I like to see her in the big pavis—classical roles."

Ann was already putting on her hat. Bill Ware recoiled for her coat and helped her into it—his efforts to please her a little jerky. When she was ready to go she put out her hand again in a friendly gesture. He took it and she felt his hungry, almost indecentious response. For an instant, before opening the door, they looked at each other with the understanding look that old friends have.

"Gee, you're swell!" he said. Ann softly laughed.

Moran Wins Over LaRue With Ease

But Tough Sailor Is Then Disqualified in Bout With LaRance

Jack Moran, often called the king of the meanies, lived up to his reputation at the South Walnut street wrestling arena Thursday night. He slugged, kicked, and otherwise broke every rule in the wrestling code.

The tough sailor man from the Pacific coast took two straight falls from Johnny LaRue to win the semi-final and then was disqualified in the main feature against Speedy LaRance, Tacoma greck.

Moran was billed only to appear in the semi-final against LaRue, but when LaRance's opponent failed to show up for the main feature Moran agreed to go on.

Moran resorted to the same dirty tactics on LaRance that he had used to eliminate LaRue. The greck warned Moran and then clamped on a punishing arm lock that cut off the circulation in Moran's arm.

Moran wiggled for five minutes, apparently helpless, and then jerked out of the hold. He resorted to slugging, kicking and hitting below the belt.

One of Moran's punches caught Referee Bert Maudlin in the stomach. This caused the fans so that several started for the ring, but stopped at the ropes when Maudlin disqualified Moran, ordering him to the dressing room and giving the decision to LaRance.

Nolan (Tootsie) Cargile, Hope youth, won a three-round boxing decision over George Womble. Cargile was

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—The boom in auto trailers has begun to scatter movie folk along the mountain roads and desert highways, and parties of them have begun going on land cruises, just as they've been in the habit of week-ending on yachts.

It's a nice way of traveling for busy stars. Loretta Young's trailer is fitted up as a dressing-room (she lived in it on the "Ramona" location). Now it is possible for her to sleep later in the morning and put on her makeup while being driven to the studio. On the way back home in the evening she can, if she wishes, take a shower.

If this practice becomes general, nobody will be surprised to see the stars, stopping in restaurant parking lots en route to the studios and hav-

Growth

By the choice we make
Of the road to take,
By the things that we do or say;
By our yes or no
To the cry, "let's go."
We are fashioned from day to day,
By our will to hear,
What comes of cure,
By our spirit in work or play,
By the little tasks
Which life always asks
We are fashioned from day to day,
We are known to men
By the notes we pen
Of comfort and help and cheer,
And the minutes we spend
To play the friend
To one who needs friendship here,
Oh, it isn't by fate,
That men grow great,
But it's choosing which road to fare;
It's seeking what's right
By day and by night,
And sharing another's care.

When Will Their Secret Be Out?

As keepers of secrets, Charlie Chaplin and Paulette Goddard seem to hold the championship in Hollywood. Just to make sure that they don't reveal the answers to the questions that are puzzling the film colony, Paulette is keeping her conversation to a whisper in the pose at right. Hollywood isn't sure whether they're just close friends, an engaged pair—or whether they're married.

Phillip's Missionary Labors

Text: Acts 8:26-40

It is in the very nature of Christianity to grow and spread. When a Christian experience becomes limited to an individual, or confined to a single community, it ceases to be Christian. There can be no such thing as a narrow or limited Christianity. If the Gospel of Christ tells of the love of a gracious God whose presence and power fill the whole universe, there can be no individual in this world to whom, or no place in this world to which, that Gospel is not related.

The impulse to tell the good news quickly became manifest in the Christian church, and here in our lesson we have an instance of the Gospel transcending the color line. Philip, a Christian disciple, was moved to go toward the south in the desert land lying between Jerusalem and Gaza.

The lesson says that an angel of the Lord spoke unto Philip. Just how we do not know. The important thing is that Philip heard this inward voice, and went.

There in the desert he found an Ethiopian—a man of great authority under Candace, queen of the Ethiopians in charge of all her treasures—who had come to Jerusalem to worship, and who was reading the prophecy of Isaiah.

That same inward voice of the spirit told Philip to go near and make the acquaintance of the Ethiopian. Philip did so, and began an interesting conversation, by inquiring whether the great man understood what he was reading. A man of smaller caliber might have resented the intrusion, but the Ethiopian was great in soul as well as in position and power.

"How can I?" he replied, "except someone shall guide me?" He invited Philip to come and sit beside him. Whereupon Philip expounded the passage that tells of the servant of Jehovah, led as a sheep to the slaughter.

It was an apt and convenient text for Philip to expound to the Ethiopian—the story of the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus. The Ethiopian proved a very ready and worthy disciple, and as they came to water he suggested that he should be baptized. What controversy is there here? Have been based upon this passage to prove either that sprinkling, or immersion, was the mode by which the rite was exercised. Fortunately, for the most part in the Christian church, we have gotten beyond that.

In the study of this lesson we shall not concentrate upon such controversial and secondary issues, but shall fix our attention, rather, upon the great, important facts that Christians have so often neglected—that there is no racial or color line in God's view of man, that the Gospel that has power to transform the life of one sort of man has equal power to transform the life of another, and that, regardless of race, situation, and climate, wherever the Gospel spreads and is manifest in love and grace, it produces new lives and new conditions.

"New uniforms have been introduced," the paper stated, "and what is equally important we will see to it that in the future only such men who are bodily fit to wear uniforms, are put into these."

Young Girl Is Cut to Pieces by Bride

18-Year-Old Former Sweetheart of Husband, Victim at Paragould

PARAGOULD, Ark.—Near death from knife wounds suffered in a ferocious attack, Beatrice Parnell, 18, of Arbyrd, Mo., told attendants at the hospital here Thursday that the knife wielder was a jealous young bride, Mrs. Hamlet Burgess, also aged 18.

Physicians offer no hope of the girl's recovery. Mrs. Burgess was arrested but was released on $500 bond.

Relatives who accompanied Miss Parnell here said that Gene Burgess, husband of the assailant, had been a suitor of Miss Parnell but last Saturday he married Mary Hamlet. After the marriage they said that Burgess tried to talk to Miss Parnell but that she had refused to have any conversation with him.

They said that Miss Parnell attended services at the Pentecostal church Wednesday night and that as she left the building, she was attacked by Mrs. Burgess and the latter's sister-in-law, Della Burgess, aged 16.

Miss Parnell was terribly slashed about the left chest and breast. She suffered two punctures of the left lung. She was brought here this morning.

Marshall Benny Dille of Senath, Mo., went to Arbyrd late Wednesday night and arrested Mrs. Burgess but she speedily was released on bond.

Yanks Depend on Relief Pitchers

Bump Hadley and Pat Malone Come in When the Stars Falter

By PAP
Associated Press Writer

Back in 1927, when the New York Yankees won the American league pennant, if there was any single factor aside from their vaunted hitting attack that was responsible for their success it was the outstanding relief work done by Wilky Moore.

Old Wilky, practically lived in the bull pen. When one of the Yankee starters weakened Wilky was called in to stem the tide. He appeared in 50 games that year—almost one-third of the total played by the Yankees. He was credited with 19 victories. All in all, he worked something like 213 innings.

As the Yankees head toward another pennant this season it is their relief hurling that has kept them in the light when stars like Gomez and Ruffing have faltered. This season the credit must go to a couple of old timers who have been kicked about by the baseball fates—Bump Hadley and Pat Malone.

This pair has accounted for 18 of the Yankees' victories, while being charged with only four defeats. What's more they top the list of American league pitchers in the win and lost

Smile Queen of the Ozarks Stars at Texas Exposition

DALLAS, Texas, July—Miss Theda Varie Smith, of Joplin, Missouri, "Smile Queen of the Ozarks," welcomes Ted Lewis, famous orchestra leader, to Dallas and the Texas Centennial Exposition on her recent visit here. Representing Missouri and Arkansas, she has been playing a prominent part in activities at the world's fair.

averages.

The results of their efforts in the present campaign more than repay these veterans for the hours of back-breaking exercising they did under the Florida sun to get in shape for the pennant race. It was likely to be their last chance and they well realized that Joe McCarthy was being criticized on all sides for wasting time on a couple of has-beens. They were determined not to fail if success could be had for hard work and training. The amount of extra labor Hadley and Malone got in at training camp put the youngsters to shame.

The prospect of getting into the World Series with the knowledge that they did their share to bring it about is ample reward. Especially is this true in the case of Malone. Right now it looks very much as though the Yankees and the Chicago Cubs will battle for the larger slice of the series melon. That would be just fine and dandy with Pat.

Pat, you will recall, spent the best years of his baseball life toiling in a Cub uniform. Then, in the twilight of his career, the Cubs sold him down the river to the St. Louis Cardinals. The Cardinals decided that Malone would be of little or no help to them so they cast him adrift. It was at this point that Manager Joe McCarthy stepped up and signed Malone. McCarthy felt that Pat still had some good baseball in his strong right arm and it would be a simple matter to bring him around to be a big help to the Yankees. McCarthy had handled Malone in Chicago and was certain that he would produce.

Malone was no bargain lost season so when the players checked in at training camp this spring McCarthy took Pat aside and talked to him like a ditch uncle. He impressed on Malone that the only way he could help himself and the Yankees was to get in shape and stay in shape. Malone gave McCarthy his word that he would give it a real whirl, and he did.

McCarthy has had his headaches with the pitching staff all season and only because the two veterans have not failed him has he been able to keep smiling. Of course, the Yankees have produced an amazing amount of power at the plate—enough to warrant their being compared with the Murderers' Row of the Ruth, Meusel, Gehrig and Company days—but pen-nants are not won by batting strength alone. There is still the little matter of pitching to be considered.

Just as Wilky Moore came through in the pinches with his famous sinker ball, so are Hadley and Malone coming to the rescue of faltering hurlers and saving games for the Yankees.

11 Men Hitler's Chief Intimates

They Are the Only Ones Who Move About With Him From Day to Day

BERLIN, Germany—(AP)—Millions of Germans have at one time or another seen and heard Adolf Hitler, but the number of those who are about him daily is limited to about a dozen.

Even Colonel General Hermann Goering, upon whom Hitler relies more than upon any other single man, does not belong to the daily routine of men who dine with the Fuehrer, spend leisure hours with him and travel wherever he goes.

Of these the most important are: Wilhelm Brueckner, Hitler's senior adjutant, towers above the middle-sized Nazi chief in stature. He joined the Nazi government in 1922 and was sentenced six months in prison for participating in the "beer cellar putsch" of November, 1923.

Julius Schaub, the Fuehrer's second adjutant, heard Hitler speak for the first time in 1921 and immediately joined the Nazi movement; his membership number is 11.

Friedrich Hossbach entered the German army in the spring of 1914. He became Hitler's military adjutant on September 1, 1934, with the rank of major. Recently he was advanced to lieutenant colonel.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, head of the Nazi press department, checks Hitler's every public utterance before its release. He served as a volunteer in the war and later earned his degree of doctor of political sciences at Freiburg. From 1928 he devoted himself exclusively to newspaper work.

Joseph Dietrich, commander of Hitler's brown-shirted bodyguard, is responsible for the Fuehrer's personal safety. In 1934, during the "blood purge," he was credited with throwing himself between Hitler and one of Roehm's men who wanted to pull the trigger on the Nazi chief.

Heinrich Hoffmann, "Reich's Picture Reporter" of the National Socialist Workers' Party, snaps the "candidate" shots of Hitler so prominent in party propaganda. He learned his profession as an aerial photographer during the war.

Rudolf Hess, dark-eyed, shaggy-browed Reich's minister without portfolio, concentrates in his hands the entire detail of Nazi party management—reporting to Hitler only on broad policies.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, Reich's minister of propaganda, lunches almost daily with Hitler; and of an evening he may summon Germany's best artistic talent for the chief's entertainment. For Dr. Goebbels also is president of the Reich's culture chamber.

Hans Baur, Hitler's trusted pilot for five years, learned to fly during the war and afterward became a commercial pilot. He is credited with almost a sixth sense for picking emergency landing fields.

Phillip Bouthier receives all letters addressed to Hitler affecting party formations and party members. He became business manager of the Nazi party in 1925.

Erich Kempka, 26, successor to Julius Schreck as Hitler's chauffeur, has been a chauffeur in the Hitler household since 1932.

It will prevent formation of "enamel skin."

Loan Made at College Is Paid Back 60 Years Later

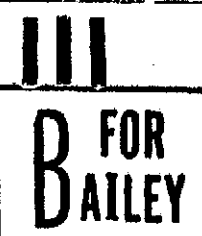

BUFFALO, N. Y.—(AP)—Gerald J. Shields, assistant corporation counsel, recently received a $5 postal order with the following note:

"When your father was a student at the University of Ottawa he loaned me

$5. I have no recollection of paying of the loan. Hence, enclosed herewith is a postal order for the same."

The letter was signed by James H. The elder Shields died 21 years ago. The loan was made 60 years ago.

According to the 1930 census, South Carolina has the highest percentage of illiteracy of any state in the U. S.

YOU PAY

.... and PAY

.... and PAY

For a Governor YOU DON'T WANT!

Yes, you taxpayers, it's your money the administration's using in a vain effort to shove a governor you don't want down your throats. It's your money, that you paid into the treasury as taxes, supposedly for the purpose of giving you a good government.

Take Care!

Take care that you are not taken in by the wild promises and political trickery of these payroll profiteers. Their only desire is to elect a governor who will let them continue in their parasitical existence at the expense of the state. They don't care whether the people want their puppet candidate or not. Yet, they are buying him WITH YOUR MONEY.

Beware!

Of chicanery and deceit; of trickery and boodling; of lies and doublecrossing.

That's the kind of politics they will play with you. That's the only kind they know. They're putting up a desperate struggle .... ON YOUR MONEY.

Remember---

Whenever you see the state cars whizzing around the state as the boys go campaigning for their handy man—

It is your gas that keeps them moving.

It is your car they are driving.

It is your time—time you pay for—they are wasting.

It is your candidate they are trying to beat.

They Can't Fool the Voters

The administration's bosses won't be able to fool the honest voters of Arkansas. The taxpayers, whose money the old ring is using, won't stand for such tactics.

A Seventeen-Hundred-Dollar Centennial Edition Heralds Your Section of Arkansas to the World!

The picture shows the scene in The Star office the morning of June 26—when the newspaper brought off its Arkansas Centennial Edition.

Five sections had been assembled—all but the “main news” which was then being run off the press—and you are looking at a stack of 25,000 eight-page sections.

Two months in the making, the production cost of this one edition was Seventeen Hundred Dollars—largest and finest newspaper in the history of the Red river country.

Its forms are knocked down.

Its type is destroyed.

Its engravings have gone into storage.

Only a few hundred copies remain—and when they pass, it is unlikely that so important an historical edition will be issued again within the lifetime of this generation in Southwest Arkansas.

Stamp News

By I. S. Klein

STAMPS already are being prepared in Washington for the Philippines, in commemoration of the 33d Eucharistic Congress, to be held in Manila, Feb. 3-7, 1937. There will be six denominations which will be available in sets at a total cost of 65 cents. Although the event for which they are designed will not take place until next February, the stamps are expected to be ready for sale about the middle of October. No orders will be accepted before Oct. 1.

All National Parks stamps finally have been withdrawn from sale at the U. S. Philatelic Agency in Washington. If you have failed to get a set, you may still buy them from local or nearby stamp dealers at above face value. They may go higher later.

The all-blue 16-cent special delivery airmail stamp may still be had at the Philatelic Agency, but this soon may be dropped from the list.

In the course of her program to spread propaganda by means of new stamp issues, Germany comes out with the first stamp ever to be issued to provide a purse for a horse race. The stamp, showing three running horses, has been sold in connection with the race to be held in Munich on July 26. Its face value is 42 pfennig, but it is being sold for one mark 50 pfennig, the difference going to the horse racing association.

Sweden has increased its postage rates for foreign mail, and therefore has issued a new set of stamps for the purpose.

Third Party the Active One Today

While Major Groups Are Busy Organizing Lemke Is "Making Hay"

By BYRON PRICE
Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

Politics is a game of paradoxes, and that perhaps accounts for the present comparative lull in a campaign which had promised to develop so furiously from the start.

Two months ago the two great parties were like newly caged panthers. Angry howls of impatience smote the welkin and whetted the anticipation of the bystanders. It was remarked everywhere that things were warming up early and that real action might be expected by July.

Then, after a June surfeit of political oratory at the conventions, the growing subsided appreciably. Organization work went on, of course, and there were some mutually uncomplimentary exchanges between the campaign managers. But the bigger guns held fire.

Mr. Landon, nominated by the Republicans, retired to the fastnesses of a mountain vacation retreat, from which he emerged in due course with an acceptance speech postponing detailed discussion of the issues until later.

Mr. Roosevelt, named by the Democrats, accepted at once in a speech leaving detailed issues for the future, and departed thereupon from American shores in a sailing ship, for a vacation cruise in obscure northern waters.

Real Action Awaits Fall

Nor does the political forecast for August feature either typhoons or whirlwinds.

Governor Landon proposes a chicken-dinner homecoming to his ancestral home in Pennsylvania, coupled with a week-end, perhaps, at a favorite summer resort in upstate New York.

President Roosevelt plans to go out into the west but not, he says, for any intensive spellbinding. He means to inspect the dried-up corn fields and the bare pastures in the drought belt.

Meanwhile, what about the issues? When are they to be defined clearly and submitted to the voters? When does the joint debate of the century begin?

September or October, it now appears, will see most of the heavy action, just as they almost always do. The President, it is said, will swing out then to the Pacific coast and back, and the governor will show himself to the midwest and to the great population centers in the east.

In spite of all the early growling and straining at the leash, in spite of the promises of the advance agents, in spite of the furious tempo of the curtain-raiser, the main show promises to run fairly true to the form of previous years.

Meanwhile, Lemke Makes Hay

One peculiarity of this situation, as it has developed in 1936, is that it leaves the stage momentarily to those various groups which are supporting neither the Republican nor the Democratic ticket. And they are making the most of their turn in the spotlight.

With Congressman Lemke, Father Coughlin, and Dr. Townsend constantly in the center of the news, it might appear that the new Union party alone is alert to its opportunities, that it is stealing an important march on the two older parties at a moment when popular interest in the campaign is manifestly keen.

But is that really the case? It always is possible that the older parties, out of the wealth of their experience, are reserving their heaviest fire because they are convinced that is the wisest plan of campaign.

If the Union party talks itself out at the start, it will not be the first time an independent political movement has rushed in too eagerly, and repeated later on.

Old Gun-Runner, Is This Smart Arab

Tells A.P. Man How the Arabs Smuggle in Guns Against Jews

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Correspondent
JERUSALEM—(AP)—This old Arab is a Mukhtar, a sort of a mayor of a small Arab village south of Jerusalem. He's a big, villainous-looking coddler until you get to know him. Then he smoothes you with kindness, chokes you with endless cups of syrupy Turkish coffee, ruining your digestion.

Then, if you hammer hard enough at him, and he really trusts you, he tells you about his specialty, gun running.

Yes, sir, the old Mukhtar is about the cleverest Arab in Palestine at sneaking rifles and ammunition from Trans-Jordan, where rifles and ammunition are lawful, into Palestine, where they most certainly are not, particularly since the revolt against Jewish immigration and land buying started almost three months ago.

"But even knowing all the little

The greasy mud will leave a stain that spreads if not promptly removed by experts.

Big Boy at Birth Tips Scales at 173.4 Pounds

Tipping the scales at 17 pounds and 12 ounces at birth, the infant son of Mrs. Isaac Finmore, 35-year-old wife of an Andover, New Brunswick, farmer, took rank among the heaviest babies of modern times. Pictured beside his mother, the baby measures 24 inches long and 18 inches around the chest.

Dr. Aden Macintosh certified the birthweight. Although nearly three pounds less than the largest newborn baby so far recorded, it is nearly 10 pounds heavier than the average.

How Party Emblems Were Born

By NEA Service

The emblems of both major political parties—the Democratic donkey and the Republican elephant—were inspired by the same cartoonist, Thomas Nast, who won fame for his drawings in Harper's Weekly.

The Democratic donkey came into existence on January 16, 1870, when the cartoon shown below appeared in Harper's. The Democrats still were bitterly assailing Lincoln's secretary of war, Edwin M. Stanton, though he had died a short time before.

Using the old fable of the mule denying the dead lion, Nast's cartoon showed the lion, labeled Stanton, beneath a tree, with a donkey lashing his heels at the carcass. The donkey emblem speedily found favor with the Democrats and they adopted it.

The G. O. P. elephant first appeared in the cartoon shown here, printed in Harper's November 7, 1874. Its basis was another fable, of the donkey clothed in lion's skin, which brayed in the jungle and frightened the elephant into dashing into a trap set by a wily fox.

The elephant as an emblem pleased Republicans, so it was adopted to represent their party.

There stretches a wide desert, most difficult to patrol but simple territory for Arabs and camels.

'Chickens and Eggs'

It's not far to the Syrian border along this desert corridor, not far either to Iraq, where arms also are easy to procure. And coming into Palestine from the south, through more bleak desert and hill country, there are many places for gun runners to slip through the British cordons.

The Arabs say they have brought in at last 10,000 rifles and hundreds of thousands of rounds of ammunition through these holes. There seems plenty of truth to such statement, for only a week ago one caravan was caught in a series of twisting wadis along the southern frontier between Ghamr and Rashrash, and in the camel packs were 1,000 army rifles and 20,000 cartridges.

As we drank more coffee the old Arab gentleman who is head of all this received a telegraph message from Gaza, another gun running center in the south.

"Chickens and eggs have arrived," he read off, translating the Arabic.

W. Virginia Game Count Discloses Too Many Deer

CHARLESTON, W. Va., (AP)—Nearly a thousand deer roam the Seneca state forest. The conservation commission thinks that's more than enough and may trap some for removal to areas where they may be hunted.

The count was made by W. C. Anderson, state game surveyor, who enumerated 979 deer in the area, along with 45 wild turkeys, 1,085 grouse, 226 rabbits, 493 gray squirrels, 23 gray foxes, 157 squirrels and four beaver.

Every word we know is stored in the brain, in a small patch of gray matter hardly larger than an American nickel.

Chats Death 4 Times Within Less Than Year

PLEASANT HILL, Mo., (AP)—With four close escapes from death in less than a year, Monroe Littell believes he bears a charmed life.

In January his car turned over but he escaped with scratches. Shortly afterward a block-and-tackle broke, dropping a heavy farm machine within inches of him. Then he caught double pneumonia.

Recently a tractor turned over and pinned Littell beneath, unhurt but saturated with oil and gasoline. Another man switched off the igni and prevented fire.

Man would be able to jump eighth of a mile if he could lay many times his own length as some insects.

Chesterfield wins

...the cigarette paper is as pure as the food you eat

If you could see the Chesterfield paper when it's being made you'd know why it's pure and clean. It looks just about like rich cream.

When Chesterfield paper comes off the rolls it is tested again and again to make sure it will burn without taste or odor.

We know from experience that good cigarette paper helps make a good cigarette — we know it's one reason why Chesterfield wins.
